Westlaw's KeyCite turns 20

KeyCite, Westlaw's online version of a citator, is turning tweny years old this year. Since its introduction in 1997, it has revolutionized the way attorneys, researchers, and librarians verify the status of caselaw and statutory law.

Prior to KeyCite, Shephard's Annotations was the go-to service. Multiple companies contracted with Shephard's to supply a service that would assist in checking the validity of cases and statutes being relied on in court documents. The use of Shephard's was so widespread in the legal market that "shepardizing" became synonmous with checking the validity and currency of cases and statutes.

West Publishing began the KeyCite project in 1997 with efforts being led by a law librarian and a Strategy Officer for Thomson Reuters Global Resources. Combined with West's Key Number Sustem, KeyCite was touted as being able to provide an accurate report on a case's legal standing.

Originally in the form of software called WestMate, KeyCite moved entirely online in 2002 when WestMate was discontinued.

Today, Westlaw touts KeyCite as being "the industry's most complete, accurate, and up-to-the-minute citation service."

Poem Celebrates Library's 200

At the recent American Association of Law Libraries Annual Meeting in Austin, Texas, poets were on hand at the opening reception to extemporaneoulsy create a poem based on any idea or topic supplied to them. The poets, part of a group called Typewriter Rodeo, would speak to the person requesting a poem for about a minute or so before typing away, on an old-fashioned typewriter no less.

As the State Law Library will celebrate its own bicentennial in January, 2018, I decided to give the poet the topic of the Library's turning 200 years old. About five minutes later, he presented me this:

Brewtening the state law library is turning one-hundred, times two let me explain why that should be important to you what began with only a few books and some maps is now more of a portal, to look into the past have you wandered about the laws from nine-teen hundred and four? well, hold on to your hat because we have that and more we hold the history of a statte spelled with crooked letters and honestly cam't wait as it will only get better

Help Needed: Any Idea Who This Might Be?

We have recently added this portrait to the first floor of the Gartin Building after it sat stored away for a time. Thus far, the Mississippi Department of Archives & History has been unable to identify it. If you have any ideas, please let us in the Library know.
